

Racism isn't always overt. Canadians have a reputation for being polite — but racism can sometimes hide in politeness. Because the same personal prejudices and systemic racism we see in other countries exist here too.